

Is your email signature putting your business at risk?

You probably don't give your email signature much thought.

It's there to provide your contact details and maybe boost your branding, right?

But have you ever stopped to consider exactly how much information you're giving away? It's enough to allow someone else to pretend to be you. Someone like a cyber criminal.

They can use this to steal from other businesses.

And it works the other way around too – you could be tricked into giving away data or money thanks to an email you thought was from someone else.

Our latest guide explains why you need to pay more attention to your email signatures, and how much information you should really be giving away.

Download your free copy now.